

Who We Are

The American Institute of Architects

The American Institute of Architects (AIA) is the professional society of architects. Since 1857, the Institute has been bringing architects together to advance the value of architects and the profession, and to increase living standards through improvements to the built environment. The American Institute of Architects meets these challenges through education, research, lobbying and professional networks. It represents 59,000 members through its national office in Washington, D.C. and over 300 state and local components.

AIA Eastern New York

AIA Eastern New York, chartered by the American Institute of Architects in 1930 and incorporated in 1956, is the local professional society for architects. AIA Eastern New York serves as the link between local professional architects, the American Institute of Architects and the public. As a Chapter of the American Institute of Architects, our objective is to promote the value of local architects, to advance the architectural profession through improvements to the built environment and to serve the public.
